

Brown County Foundation Acknowledges Donation

The Brown County Foundation Fund gratefully acknowledges the recent donation of six yearling steers for the benefit of the Endowment Fund.

After the yearlings were donated, the Rolling Stone Feed Yard purchased them and will feed them to harvest.

The generous livestock producers who became the first participants of the Brown County Foundation Fund's Cattlemen Challenge were: Beel Brothers of Johnstown, Mike and Jolene Freeman, Robert and Leanne Maxwell of Ainsworth, Niels McDermott of Grand Island, Sid and Ruth Salzman of Ainsworth and Al and Lois Steuter of Johnstown.

The Rolling Stone Feed Yard has also committed a percentage of the profit from the sale of these yearlings to the Endowment Fund.

It is through the support of these livestock producers and the many other generous contributions from local and former residents that the Brown County Foundation Fund is able to continue making progress toward the five year goal of raising $500,000 for the Endowment Fund.

The Endowment Fund is currently within $22,000 of the goal for 2011. The Cattlemen Challenge will continue this fall with donations of calves. An informational meeting will be announced at a later date.

Anyone wishing to make a contribution, memorial, bequest, or a donation of stocks, bonds, livestock or grain should contact Diana Syfie, Al Steuter, Renée Adkisson, Susan Spann, Betty Kirkpatrick, Scott Steinhauser, Carolyn Johnson or Joel Klammer for more information.
